

CLR Marketing, (including but not limited to its current owner, past owner, or employees) will not disclose any of your personal information including and related to addresses, emails, or phone numbers unless given express, written confirmation to do so for marketing purposes, such as information on a website or advertisement, but reserves use of your first and last name and company names for personal marketing purposes.

Your information will not be sold to any third-party organizations, or affiliates of CLR Marketing, or any benefactors, or individual persons for any reason.

By signing with CLR Marketing, you agree to CLR Marketing using your name, phone number, company name, email, and address only if you have an in-store location when creating ad campaigns for you. This information will already be known to the public, and by agreeing to CLR Marketing's services, you are confirming that it is okay for this information to be public.

CLR marketing will be creating, designing, and tracking statistics of advertisements on behalf of your company name.